Pacific River Bags

We designed this bag to take the drudgery out of loading and unloading dry bags and gear on rafting trips - short (McKenzie model) or long (Colorado model). From our own experience, the hassle of individually strapping down bags, coolers, etc., has been eliminated by the convenience of just putting what you need to take along in the Pacific River Bag, once it is strapped to the raft. Cinch the drawrope and strap down the lid to the raft and you're ready to go! Cooler, dry bags, sunscreen, binocs and cameras, all can be put inside the bag and you know they will still be in the raft when you reach your destination - even if you flip the raft!

We deliver the Pacific River Bags with cam buckle straps attached to the rings sewn onto the middle and top of the bag. Further attachment rings are sewn onto the bottom of the bag for your convenience. The rings and straps make it easy to solidly secure this bag in the cavity of the raft.

The best feature of this bag is that it will hold no water! Any water quickly drains through the heavy-duty mesh fabric, which is reinforced with 1.5" heavyweight poly webbing.

Cooler Pad

Pads have an insulative core and mesh pockets, fit over the food in your cooler and help keep it away from outside air. Pockets hold utensils or small food items that don't need to be kept as cool as the rest of the cooler's contents. Pads are blue nylon with 1-1/2" of insulation. Every time you open the top the warm air cannot get to the ice and cold items below.

Ground Cloth / Sun Shade

A 6' X 6' ground cloth (now required for some rivers) catches micro trash in the kitchen and is easily lifted and dumped in the garbage, plus the mesh design is easily cleaned. Suspended this makes a great sun screen. It will let a little sun through and allows a gentle breeze through as well.

CASCADE SERIES OF CAMPING SUPPLIES

E Z Pump Top-Off Pump

This pump does such a great job, it's the only one I take along on river trips. Since overinflation can kill a raft, letting a little air out at lunch is not a problem with our EZ Pump on board - in only a few seconds you can pump the raft back up! The pump also has a webbing "crown" to hold the plunger in place until needed. Just a quick release of the buckle and it's ready to go. EZ Pump Bag for use with the Top-Off Pump, sold separately, is made from a urethane-coated nylon bag to protect it from dirt and water. A sewn-on piece of webbing with loops makes it easy to strap the bag with pump to a thwart or to otherwise secure it to the boat.

Bryson Foot-brace

Canoe Foot-brace Straps

The Original Closed Toe & Reinforced Rafter's Footcup

Footcups allow rafters a stable place to put their feet, leaving their hands free for paddling. Closed end makes it impossible for a foot to slip through.

The boot is stitched to raft floor material, reinforced with 1" poly webbing around the base and 1.5" webbing over the arch. Extra reinforcement on the inside corners where stress is greatest.

Hinged Footcups

The newest innovation on our proven and popular closed-toe footcup is a hinged bottom. The flexibility of the hinged bottom makes this footcup ideal for ribbed bottom rafts.

Hypalon footcups have a color top and black bottom:

- gray/black, light gray/black, blue/black, red/black, white/black, yellow/black and black/black

Vinyl footcups are same color top and bottom:

- gray, blue, black, yellow, and red

Canoe Storage Covers

We believe that DuPont Tyvek® is the best material available for this application. DuPont Tyvek® is a non-woven olefin that is virtually waterproof yet still breathes. It is the only material available for making affordable canoe covers that combines these two characteristics. It will keep out the finest dirt and dust particles to protect the surface of a canoe from scratches and abrasion. Naturally white, Dupont Tyvek® will keep the surface of the canoe cool while blocking out 99.8% of the sun's damaging UV.

The UNDER COVER Canoe Storage Cover is a dependable, effective product. Intended for those who do not transport their canoe frequently or over long distances but who want to protect their canoe from the environment during indoor and outdoor storage. This is the ideal cover for wooden canoes. It has a full-length drawstring that can be drawn up at both ends. Available in sizes to fit most canoes from 12 to 18-1/2 feet and includes a storage bag.
